About the event History/Reality: An Attic Archive Installation and Performance Event. View rarely-seen artefacts, video art, and specially created performances celebrating over 40 years of Dundee's legendary Attic Archive.

About this Event History/Reality Installation: Tuesday-Thursday, 2-4 April, 10.00-16.00 BST, by appointment only. Performances: Thursday, 4 April, 17.00-20.00 BST. Venue: DJCAD, Matthew Building Level 5 Galleries, 13 Perth Road Dundee DD1 4HT

History/Reality is an Attic Archive installation and performance event. The Attic Archive was established by artist Pete Horobin in 1975 at 37 Union Street, Dundee, and is now dispersed across collections in Scotland, Ireland, and Hungary. This exhibition is the first in a series, with future editions in Budapest and Dublin, featuring rarely or never-seen video art, correspondence, drawings, and artefacts documenting distinct decades of the artist's life through the characters of Pete Horobin, Marshall Anderson, Peter Haining and Ae Phor Aitch.

In addition to archival display and video screenings, History/Reality in Dundee will feature an evening of performances by Stewart Home, Roddy Hunter and Laurie McInally, responding to aspects of the archive from their different perspectives and exploring its relevance to contemporary cultural and social experience.

Stewart Home was born in London (UK) in 1962, where he still lives. When he was sixteen, he held down a factory job for a few months, an experience that led him to vow he'd never work again. After dabbling in rock journalism and music in the early eighties, he switched his attention to the art world.

Laurie McInally is a Glasgow-born, Dundee-based, multi-media artist. Her work explores internalised views on gender, class and sexuality while investigating and challenging the social structures that inherently feed these attitudes.

Judit Bodor is Baxter Fellow and Programme Director of MFA Curatorial Practice at DJCAD, University of Dundee. Her curatorial work is always collaborative and involves works directly with artists to expose lesser-known histories and practices of post-1970s counter-cultural, time-based, and networked art.

Roddy Hunter is an artist, curator, and writer whose interests range from locational and durational art and performance to post-digital approaches to making and curating contemporary art. He works in the School of Fine Art at The Glasgow School of Art.

The 'The Digital Attic Archive' project is supported by the RSE Research Network Award. Dr Judit Bodor and Dr Roddy Hunter lead the research network, which includes the University of Dundee Archive Services, the National Library of Scotland, the Artpool Art Research Center at the Central European Institute for Art History (KEMKI), Budapest, and the National Irish Visual Arts Library (NIVAL) at the National College of Art & Design, Dublin.
