

The Archaeologist's Trail

Hillforts of Central Scotland

Since 2007 the SERF project has been investigating hillforts in Strathearn, Perthshire. To date, ten sites have been excavated by archaeologists from the University of Glasgow by digging trenches across the surviving ramparts and ditches.

This interactive resource explores the archaeological processes which inform our interpretations of these complex Iron Age sites. Discover the hillforts from the sky to the soil, through the artefacts they yield and the different voices who contribute to unravelling their complex history...

Click start to view \(will launch in full screen\)

Start

Acknowledgements